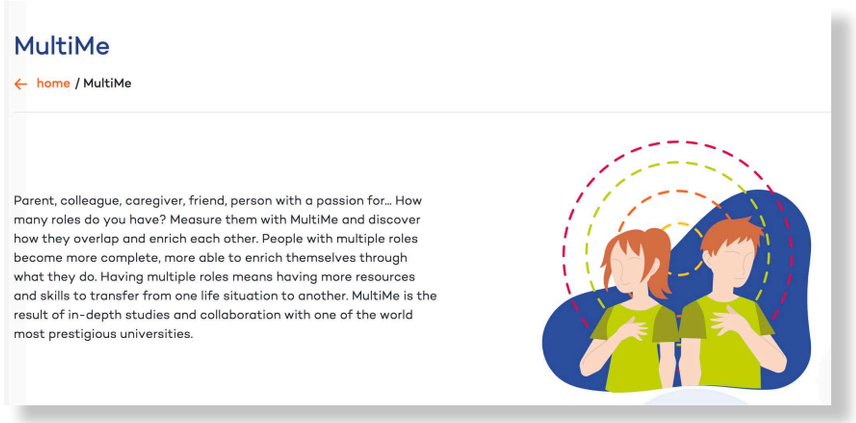
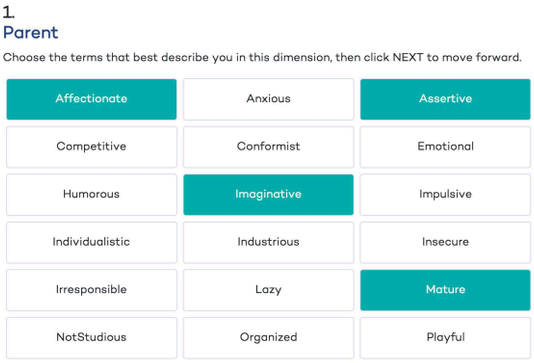
LIFEED

MultiMe®

MultiMe® is a self-assessment tool, developed in collaboration with Kellogg School of Management. It allows people to see a snapshot of their various identity dimensions. It's our proprietary "serious game" that's already been used by over 10,000 people in over 70 companies.

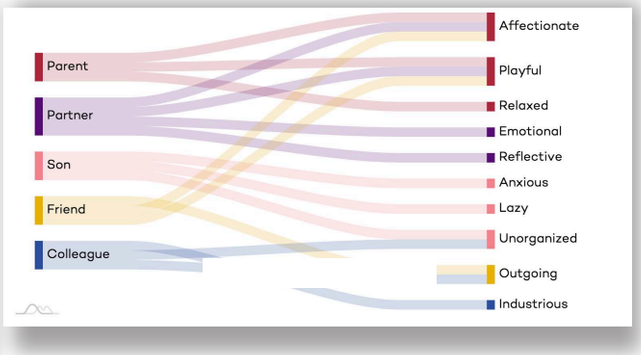
MultiMe is based on "Role Theory" research, helping people within the company to get to know themselves better.

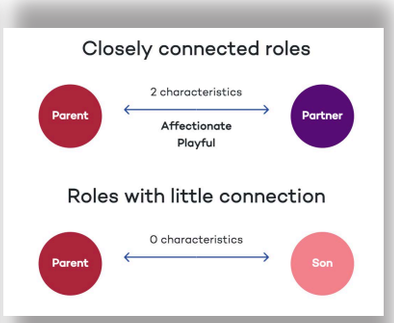




USER REPORT

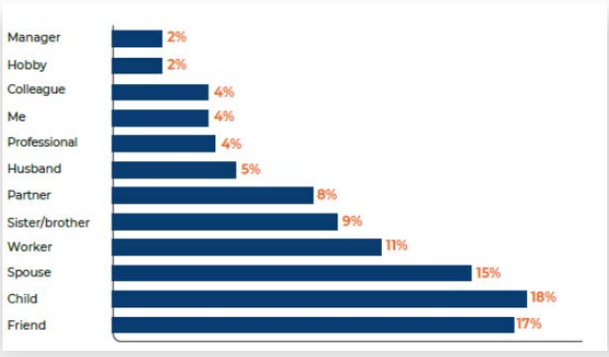
MultiMe® allows people to explore their own identity dimensions and character traits, allowing them to transfer and apply their soft skills from one role to another.





HR REPORT

MultiMe® gives the company an aggregated snapshot of their employees. It includes a whole host of new people data and useful information about the characteristics that are relevant to the workplace, that are often left unseen.



Example of graphic showcasing the most common dimensions across the employee population

Example of wordcloud on the most common dimensions